

Collects and Biographies for

Saints' Days & Festivals of the Scottish Episcopal Calendar

January

Using this booklet

This booklet contains a short biography, and appropriate collects, for all saints and dated festivals within the Scottish Calendar published in 1996. It does not provide Post-Communion Prayers.

You may use the short biography as a preface to the Collect of the Day to introduce the life of the saint to the congregation, or as a short homily.

This booklet is arranged with one saint (or festival) to a page, giving details of the saint's day, its category (1-6) and the liturgical colour. Collects for use at a 1970 Scottish Liturgy (or 1929) Eucharist are given on the left, those for 1982 Scottish Liturgy on the right.

Notes

- Where feasts in Category 4 fall on a Sunday (other than a Sunday in Categories 1 and 2), they may, if local circumstances require, be kept on that day.
- When days in Category 6 coincide with a day of higher category, they should be omitted that year.

THE NAMING OF JESUS [2] White

The celebration of this scriptural festival marks three events: firstly, the naming of the infant Christ as Jesus; secondly, the circumcision as the sign of the covenant between God and Abraham 'and his children for ever', thus Christ's keeping of the Law; and thirdly, traditionally the first shedding of the Christ's blood. The most significant of these in the gospels is the name itself, which means 'Yahweh saves' and so is linked to the question asked by Moses of God: 'What is your name?' 'I am who I am,' was the reply, hence the significance of Jesus's words: 'Before Abraham was, I am.' This feast has been observed in the Church since at least the sixth century.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

O Almighty God, who has given unto thy Son Jesus Christ
the name which is above every name, and hast taught us that there is none other whereby we may be saved: mercifully grant
that as thy faithful people have comfort and peace in his name, so they may ever labour to proclaim it unto all nations; through the same
Jesus Christ our Lord,
who is alive and reigns with thee and the Holy Spirit, one God, now and for ever.

(SPB)

1982 Scottish Liturgy

Almighty God,
whose blessed Son was circumcised in obedience to the law for our sake, and given the Name
that is above every name; give us grace faithfully to bear his Name, to worship him in the freedom of the Spirit, and to proclaim him as the Saviour of mankind, who is alive and reigns with you,
in the unity of the Holy Spirit,
one God, now and for ever.

Seraphim of Sarov (1833) [6] White

Born at Kursk, 300 miles south of Moscow, in 1759, the son of a builder, Seraphim entered the monastery of Sarov at 19, and after 15 years was ordained priest. He lived as a hermit in the neighbouring forest, leading a life of study and constant prayer. In 1810, because his strength was failing, he was given a small room within the monastery where he continued to live as a recluse, but giving help and direction to all who came to him.

He was a man of remarkable spiritual and prophetic gifts, the archetype of the Russian ideal of the starets, the holy monk and elder. He died in his cell on this day 1833 and is revered in the Russian Orthodox Church as 'an ikon of Orthodox spirituality.'

1970 Scottish Liturgy

O God,
who didst call thy servant Seraphim to a life of solitary devotion that he might learn the deeper truths of thy love; raise up in our own day saints and prophets who may fearlessly proclaim thy holy word, and shine in the world with the pure light of thy glory;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

1982 Scottish Liturgy

THE EPIPHANY OF THE LORD [1] White

‘Epiphany’ means ‘showing forth,’ and the feast commemorates the first showing forth of Christ to the world, when His presence was revealed to the three Magi. In the season of Epiphany we also remember: the revelation of Christ to John the Baptist, to the disciples, and to all Christians; Christ’s baptism and our own, together with the ways in which Christ was revealed to humankind, especially in the healing miracles; and ponder the ways in which we ourselves are called to bring Christ to the world. The predominant symbol of the season is Light – the light from the Star of Bethlehem and the Light of Christ spreading throughout the world.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

O God,
who by the leading of a star didst manifest thy only-begotten Son to the Gentiles:
mercifully grant that we,
which know thee now by faith, may after this life have the fruition of thy glorious Godhead;
through Jesus Christ our Lord, who is alive and reigneth with thee and the Holy Spirit,
one God, now and for ever.

(SPB)

1982 Scottish Liturgy

O God,
who by the leading of a star manifested your only Son to the peoples of the earth:
mercifully grant that we,
who know you now by faith, may at last behold your glory face to face;
through Jesus Christ our Lord,
who is alive and reigns with you,
in the unity of the Holy Spirit,
one God, now and for ever.

Note

Epiphany may be kept on the Sunday following 1 January.

William Laud, Bishop (1645) [6] Red

Born at Reading, the son of a tailor, in 1573, William Laud was ordained and became President of Saint John's College, Oxford, where he opposed the prevailing Calvinistic theology. He was successively Dean of Gloucester, Bishop of St Davids, Bath & Wells, London, and Chancellor of Oxford University, and was made Archbishop of Canterbury in 1633 by Charles I. He is remembered for encouraging sound scholarship, and restoring something of pre-Reformation liturgical practice in England, principles which found expression in the 1637 Prayer Book for Scotland. His work in the political administration of the country antagonized the Puritans, and his harsh treatment of those who did not share his beliefs aroused fierce opposition which led to his impeachment. After a trial in which concern for justice was not paramount, he was beheaded on Tower Hill on 10 January, 1645.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

O God,
who didst endow thy bishop William Laud
with zeal for true scholarship and ordered worship that might more fully reflect the beauty of holiness: may we give ourselves wholly unto thee, and be possessed more and more by thy Holy Spirit, who shall lead us into all the truth and transform our worship
into the praises
of thy heavenly hosts;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

1982 Scottish Liturgy

God,

William Laud
a zealous love for true scholarship that might reflect more fully that He may lead us into all the truth and transform our worship

into the praises
of the heavenly hosts;

David, King of the Scots (1153) [6] Red

The fourth son of Queen Margaret, David succeeded his brothers as King, and continued their policy of bringing Scotland closer to Norman England in government, social structures, culture and ecclesiastical affairs. He founded many monasteries such as those in St Andrews, Melrose and Jedburgh, favouring reforming orders, and sought to regularize the diocesan system and to build parish churches. All these reforms had a marked effect on the life of ordinary people, and brought much needed stability to the Scottish scene. The monasteries were a powerful civilizing influence, and centres for education, care for the sick and relief to the poor. The circumstances of his day made him a warrior-king, but his personal piety is attested by his death at Carlisle, in 1154, “with his two hands joined together on his breast, and raised to heaven.”

1970 Scottish Liturgy

O God, whose Holy Spirit inspired King David to follow the example of his blessed mother in zeal for the extension of thy Church and in charity towards thy people: may his example inspire those in authority to establish the life of this nation upon the sure foundations of holy devotion, unceasing compassion and righteousness of life; through Jesus Christ our Lord.

(MEG)

1982 Scottish Liturgy

God our Father, in the strength of your Holy Spirit King David continued the work of his devout mother in extending your Church and caring for the poor: may his example inspire those in authority to establish the life of this nation on the sure foundations of holy devotion, unceasing compassion and righteousness of life; through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Kentigern (Mungo) Bishop of Glasgow (c.603) [4] White

Kentigern, also known affectionately as Mungo, which means ‘darling’ was the son of a British princess, Kentigern is said to have been brought up in the latter part of the sixth century at Culross by Saint Serf. He became a missionary to the Kingdom of Strathclyde, founding the Church of Glasgow. Expelled by a hostile monarch, he sought refuge first in Cumbria, and then in North Wales for twenty years, where he is said to have founded the monastery of Saint Asaph. On the accession of a Christian king in Strathclyde, he was recalled and spent the rest of his life building up the church in the Glasgow area. He died around the year 603.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

O God,
who by the preaching of thy blessed servant
Saint Kentigern
didst cause the light of the Gospel to shine in this our land: grant, we beseech thee, that having his life and labour in remembrance, we may show forth our thankfulness to thee for the same by following the example of his zeal and patience;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

(SPB)

1982 Scottish Liturgy

who set your servant Kentigern (Mungo)
to be a bishop in the Church, to feed your sheep and to guide them by good example: give us grace to keep the faith of the Church and to follow in the footsteps of Jesus Christ your Son our Lord, who is alive and reigns with you,

Hilary of Poitiers, Bishop & Teacher of the Faith (c.367) [6] White

Born at Poitiers at the beginning of the fourth century, Hilary, a convert to Christianity, was elected Bishop of that city in AD 350. He relentlessly combated the Arians — who denied the divinity of Christ, and was exiled by the Emperor Constantine for a while. His writings in defence of the Catholic faith and in interpretation of the Scriptures are outstanding in their wisdom and learning. A vigorous controversialist, he was recognized as a sympathetic and friendly man, and among those who came under his influence was Saint Martin of Tours. He died in 367.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

Almighty God,
who gavest to thy servant Hilary great gifts of learning and teaching, and faithfulness
in bearing witness to thy truth: grant to thy Church a continuance of such gifts, which grace to use them always to thy glory;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.
(F – adapted.)

1982 Scottish Liturgy

Everlasting God, whose servant Hilary steadfastly confessed your Son, Jesus Christ,
to be both human and divine: grant that we may hold fast to this faith, and bear witness to the holy Name of your Son, Jesus Christ our Lord, who is alive and reigns
with you and the Holy Spirit,
one God, now and for ever.

Antony of Egypt, Abbot (356) [6] White

Revered as the father of monasticism, Antony was born in Egypt around the year AD 251. After the death of his parents, he gave all his possessions to the poor and went into the desert to live a life of penance. Many became his followers, and he gathered them into loose-knit communities and exercised some authority over them.

From about 312 his home was a cave on a mountainside above the Red Sea, where he lived a life of great austerity, discipline and piety. His work for the Church included support for the confessors of the faith in their sufferings during the persecution under Diocletian, and for Athanasius – later his biographer – in his struggle against the Arians. He died at a great age in the year 356 asking that he be buried secretly, so that his person might be hidden in death as in life.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

O God,
at whose call the blessed Abbot Antony left the haunts of men to enter on the solitary way: grant to us in our day the grace of perseverance, that neither faltering, nor stumbling, nor looking back, we may press on towards the goal for the prize of our high calling in Christ Jesus our Lord, who is alive and reigns with thee
and the Holy Spirit,
one God, now and for ever.

(F)

1982 Scottish Liturgy

Most gracious God, you called your servant Antony to sell all that he had and to serve you in the solitude of the desert: by this example may we learn to deny ourselves and to love you above all things;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

The Confession of Peter [6] White

The beginning of the ministry of the Apostle Peter at Rome has been commemorated in that city from ancient times. The feast, known as the 'Chair of St Peter', is a reminder of the chair or cathedra on which a bishop sets and teaches. The traditional readings for the day include Peter's acclamation of Jesus, 'You are the Messiah, the Son of the living God' (Matthew 16:16), a confession of faith which have given its name to this commemoration. Since 29 June may be observed as the feast of both Peter and Paul, this separate day enables Peter to be commemorated alone, and mirrors the remembrance of Paul a week later.

These two days, the Confession of Peter and the Conversion of Paul, bracket the Week of Prayer for Christian Unity. As Paul's conversion reminds us that we are united in a call to proclaim Jesus among the nations, so Peter's confession reminds us that we are united in proclaiming the divine revelation of Jesus Christ 'the Son of the living God'.

(Exciting Holiness (2003), p.54)

Agnes, Martyr at Rome (c.304) [6] Red

Agnes suffered martyrdom in Rome, either in the latter part of the 3rd century, or, more probably, at the beginning of the 4th. Many of the early Christian writers speak of her with great praise, but nothing is known for certain of her life. It is probable that she was a young maiden who consecrated her virginity to God, and refusing all advances of marriage was denounced as a Christian in the persecution under Diocletian. She is believed to have died in the year 304 and her feast day has ever since been celebrated on this day.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

O God,
who as on this day didst cause thy blessed Virgin Agnes to attain unto the heavenly palm of martyrdom:
grant us, we beseech thee, so to follow her example that we may be accounted worthy to be admitted into thy presence;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

1982 Scottish Liturgy

Almighty and Everliving God, grant that as we celebrate the martyrdom of Saint Agnes, we may follow her example of steadfastness in faith;

through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Francis de Sales, Bishop (1622) [6] White

Born in the castle at Sales in Savoy in 1567, Francis was ordained priest and worked strenuously for the renewal of the Roman Catholic faith and won many back to it, demonstrating the truth of his own maxim, "whoever preaches with love preaches effectively." After his election as Bishop of Geneva he showed himself to be a true shepherd towards his clergy and all the faithful, and won the respect of many within the Calvinist community. His spiritual writings, compiled from directions to individuals, continue to help many with their clear vision of how ordinary life 'in the world' can be made holy. He died at Lyons in 1622 and was buried in Annecy on this day in 1623.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

O God of love,

Conversion of Saint Paul, Apostle [4] White

Saul, a Jew from Tarsus in Cilicia, a strict Pharisee, trained under the celebrated Rabbi Gamaliel. He was an implacable opponent of the Church, and on a journey to Damascus to extend his persecution Christ appeared to him, and Saul was won for Christ's service, becoming the greatest missionary of the apostolic age and the foremost Christian thinker and teacher.

Antioch was the base for his early missionary work throughout the eastern Mediterranean, achieved through three major journeys. On returning to Jerusalem, his presence in the Temple caused a riot, after which he was taken into Roman custody, and, to avoid being handed over to the Jews, he exercised his right as a Roman citizen to have his case heard by the emperor. He was taken to Rome, where he remained for a number of years, eventually suffering martyrdom.

His letters in the New Testament to the churches he had founded and to others are testimony to his towering faith and intellect, and to his hope and love. This feast has been celebrated in the Church since the sixth century but became universal in the twelfth century.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

O God,
who, through the preaching of the blessed Apostle Saint Paul, hast caused the light of the Gospel to shine throughout the world: Grant, we beseech thee, that we, having his wonderful conversion

Timothy & Titus, Bishops [6] White

On the day following the Conversion of Saint Paul, the Church remembers his two companions, Timothy and Titus, 'partners and fellow-workers in God's service'; Timothy being placed in charge of the Church at Ephesus, and Titus at Crete.

Timothy was a native of Lystra, son of a Gentile father and a Jewish mother, and is regarded as the first bishop of that city, who, according to tradition, was lynched for opposing the observance of a heathen festival.

Titus was a Greek, and seems to have been Paul's messenger in dealing with the troubles in the church at Corinth. In Crete his name is associated particularly with the city of Gortyna.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

O God our Father, who didst give to thy servants Timothy and Titus power to preach thy word with courage and wisdom:
grant, we beseech thee,
that living a life of integrity and wholeness in the world we may be brought to our true home in heaven;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.
(R – adapted)

1982 Scottish Liturgy

Heavenly Father, you sent your apostle Paul to preach the Gospel, and gave Timothy and Titus to be his companions in the faith:

who is alive and reigns
with you and the Holy Spirit,
one God, now and for ever.

John Chrysostom, Bishop & Teacher of the Faith (407) [6] White

Born at Antioch about AD 349, the son of an officer in the Imperial army, John Chrysostom was brought up a Christian, and followed a brilliant course of studies, after which he led a life of great austerity. He was ordained priest, and his preaching bore much fruit — his name means 'Golden Mouth'.

He became Bishop of Constantinople in 397, and showed himself a true pastor, striving to reform the morals both of clergy and people. He incurred the hatred of the imperial court and was twice sent into exile, and died, exhausted, in exile in 407.

He is honoured as one of the four great Greek Doctors of the Church, and his surviving sermons show his earnestness in commending the Faith and in encouraging its practical expression in daily living.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

O God, who didst give to thy servant
John Chrysostom
grace eloquently to proclaim thy righteousness in the great congregation, and fearlessly to bear reproach for the honour of thy Name:
mercifully grant
to all bishops and pastors such excellency in preaching and fidelity in ministering thy Word, that thy people may be partakers with them of the glory that shall be revealed;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

who minister thy holy Word such excellence in preaching
and faithfulness
that all peoples may share with them in that glory that shall be revealed;

Thomas Aquinas, Teacher of the Faith (1274) [6] White

Born a member of a noble family about 1225, Thomas Aquinas studied first at Monte Cassino and then at Naples. He joined the Dominican Order and continued his studies at Paris and Cologne under Saint Albert the Great. He was an outstanding writer and teacher of philosophy as well as sacred theology; many regard him as the greatest in the mediaeval Church, and he is honoured as the 'universal teacher'. It was said of him that "his wonderful learning owes far less to his genius than to the effectiveness of his prayer". Many of his hymns and prayers are still in regular use. He died in 1274, with his great work, the Summa Theologica, unfinished.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

Eternal God,
the Fount of all truth, who hast enriched thy Church with the learning and holiness of thy servant Thomas Aquinas: grant to all who know thee a humble mind and a pure heart, that walking here in faith and love, they may, in the life eternal, come to know thy Son Jesus Christ as the Way, the Truth and the Life; who now liveth and reigneth
with thee and the Holy Spirit,
one God, now and for ever.

Charles I, King (1649) [6] Red

King Charles I was a man of strangely complex character, of high moral purity, religious principle and personal responsibility, but stubborn and imprudent in public policy. Contrary to the spirit of the times in both his kingdoms, he sought to steer the Church much closer to traditional Catholicism. His unwavering belief in the divine right of kings gave rise to repressive action against those of different outlook, and led unavoidably to the Civil War, and to his own execution in 1649, where his piety and dignity impressed even his enemies.

In Scotland he favoured the Episcopalian party: he founded the Diocese of Edinburgh, strenuously supported episcopacy, and tried to restore dignified liturgical worship through the Prayer Book of 1637.

O God, by whose grace thy servant King Charles was strengthened to hold fast the faith he had received even unto death, and so pass from a corruptible to an incorruptible crown: grant that we,
by a careful and studious imitation of his virtues, may show forth thy truth in this life, and hereafter
reign with him in glory;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Charles Mackenzie of Central Africa, Bishop, Missionary and Martyr (1862) [6] Red

The Universities Mission to Central Africa was formed in response to an appeal by David Livingstone. Charles Mackenzie was consecrated bishop in Cape Town in 1861 to lead this mission from South Africa up the Zambesi towards Lake Nyassa. The missionaries' preaching of the gospel and their efforts to secure the release of slaves provoked opposition from native leaders and Portuguese colonists. Charles succumbed to illness and died only a year after his consecration, a man of transparent and humble Christian devotion.
