

Collects and Biographies for

Saints' Days & Festivals of the Scottish Episcopal Calendar

June

Using this booklet

This booklet contains a short biography, and appropriate collects, for all saints and dated festivals within the Scottish Calendar published in 1996. It does not provide Post-Communion Prayers.

You may use the short biography as a preface to the Collect of the Day to introduce the life of the saint to the congregation, or as a short homily.

This booklet is arranged with one saint (or festival) to a page, giving details of the saint's day, its category (1-6) and the liturgical colour. Collects for use at a 1970 Scottish Liturgy (or 1929) Eucharist are given on the left, those for 1982 Scottish Liturgy on the right.

Notes

- Where feasts in Category 4 fall on a Sunday (other than a Sunday in Categories 1 and 2), they may, if local circumstances require, be kept on that day.
- When days in Category 6 coincide with a day of higher category, they should be omitted that year.

Justin of Rome, Martyr (c.165) [6] Red

Born of a pagan family at Nablus in Samaria at the beginning of the 2nd century, he was a philosopher, and after his conversion to Christianity travelled widely proclaiming the Gospel, although he never sought ordination.

He was the most able Christian apologist of his age, writing extensively to vindicate the truth of his religion. Of his works only his two Apologies and his Dialogue addressed to Trypho survive.

He opened a school at Tome and took part in public disputations. He suffered a martyr's death with his companions during the reign of Marcus Aurelius, in about the year AD 165, being beheaded after refusing to sacrifice to idols. The authentic record of their martyrdom based on an official court report has survived. Traditionally Justin is often surnamed 'Martyr' because of his two-fold witness to Christ, through his apologetic writings and his manner of death.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

Almighty and everlasting God, who didst find thy martyr Justin wandering from teacher to teacher, seeking the true God, and didst reveal to him the sublime wisdom of thine eternal Word:
grant that all who seek thee, or a deeper knowledge of thee, may find and be found by thee,
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

(ECUSA – LFF)

1982 Scottish Liturgy

God, our Redeemer, through the folly of the cross you taught your martyr Justin the sublime wisdom of Jesus Christ:
remove from us
every kind of error, that we, like him,
may be firmly grounded in the faith;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Charles Lwanga and Companions, the Martyrs of Uganda (1886) Janani Luwum, Bishop (1977) [6] Red

During the years 1885 to 1887 many Christians were killed in Uganda by the king Mwanga in his hatred of their religion. Some of those who died served in the king's palace and some even were the king's personal attendants, among them Charles Lwanga and 31 companions, both Protestants and Roman Catholics. Because they would not acquiesce in the impure desires of the king some of them were killed by the sword while others were burned to death. The description of the deaths of these young African Christians reads like a martyrdom narrative from the first Christian centuries.

Many people suffered in the years of the tyranny of President Idi Amin, among them the Anglican Bishop of Kampala and Archbishop of Uganda, Janani Luwum, who was abducted after a meeting of the Ugandan bishops with the President on 17 February, 1977, and killed, although it was alleged he had met his death in a road accident.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

Lord God, our heavenly Father, by whose grace
the Martyrs of Uganda defied their persecutors, and through their great love for thee endured the pain of death:
grant, we beseech thee, that we may love thee daily more and more, and faithfully bear witness to the Name of Jesus; who liveth and reigneth with thee and the Holy Spirit, one God, now and for ever.

(SA – adapted)

1982 Scottish Liturgy

Father,
you have made the blood of the martyrs the seed of your Church: may the witness of
the Martyrs of Uganda,
and their loyalty to Christ in the face of torture inspire countless men and women to live the faith for which they died;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

John XXIII, Bishop (1963) [6] White

Angelo Roncalli was born in Bergamo in northern Italy in 1881. He was ordained priest in 1904. After work in the Vatican he was the first Apostolic Delegate to Bulgaria, then Turkey, after which he became Papal Nuncio in Paris. He was created a Cardinal in 1952, and within days was made Patriarch of Venice. In 1958 he was elected Pope, taking the name John XXIII.

His brief pontificate was a time of renewal for the Roman Catholic Church, of which the enduring achievement was the summoning of the Second Vatican Council. He also worked hard for ecumenism. His infectious smile was a sign of his profound humanity and compassion, and humility and simple goodness shone out through him.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

Almighty and everliving God, who didst call thy servant John XXIII to the papal throne to guide thy people
by word and example:
inspire the pastors of thy Church, we beseech thee, with the same humility, compassion and holiness, that by thy grace they may lead the people entrusted to their care to the fullness of thy salvation;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.
(MEG from R.)

Almighty and everliving God, you called your servant John XXIII to the papal throne to guide your people
by word and example:
inspire the pastors of your Church, with the same humility, compassion and holiness, that by your grace they may lead
the people entrusted to their care to the fullness of your salvation;

Boniface of Mainz, Bishop, Missionary and Martyr (754) [6] Red

Born at or near Crediton in Devon about the year 673, he became a monk at Exeter, and in 719 went to Germany to preach the faith.

He had great success and was consecrated Bishop of Mainz, and with the help of his companions, many from Wessex, he founded or revived dioceses in Bavaria, Thuringia and Franconia. He presided over a number of councils and promulgated laws.

While he was engaged in the evangelization of Friesland, he was killed by pagans in 754. His body was buried in the monastery of Fulda.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

O Lord Jesus Christ, who callest to thee whom thou willest, and sendest them whither thou dost choose: we thank thee for calling thy servant Boniface to be the apostle to Germany and to lay down his life for the faith; and we humbly pray thee to raise up among us people who will go forth to destroy the strongholds of idolatry, and to build up thy Church in heathen lands; who livest and reignest with the Holy Spirit, one God, world without end.

(F – adapted)

1982 Scottish Liturgy

Lord,
your martyr Boniface spread the faith by his teaching and witnessed to it with his blood: by the power of his example and the help of his prayers keep us loyal to our faith, and give us courage to profess it in our lives;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Ephrem the Syrian, Deacon and Teacher of the Faith (373) [6]
*White

Born of a Christian family in Nisibis (Mesopotamia) about the year AD 306, he was ordained deacon and worked both in his own country and in Edessa, where he laid the foundations of the School of Theology.

He lived an ascetic life, and was renowned as a preacher. He wrote a number of works to refute the errors in doctrine current at the time, and used his poetic skills to commend orthodox teaching in metrical homilies and hymns. He died in the year 373.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

O Almighty God, who didst give to thy servant Ephrem special gifts of grace to understand and teach the truth as it is in Christ Jesus: grant, we beseech thee, that by this teaching we may know thee, the one true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent; who now liveth and reigneth with thee and the Holy Spirit, one God, for ever and ever.

(ECUSA)

1982 Scottish Liturgy

Lord,
in your love fill our hearts with the Holy Spirit, who inspired the deacon Ephrem to sing the praise of your mysteries, and gave him strength to serve you alone;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

COLUMBA OF IONA, Abbot (597) [4] White

Born of royal blood in Gartan, County Donegal, probably in the year AD 521, he became a monk and was renowned as a founder of monasteries, notably Derry and Durrow.

In the year 563 he left Ireland, possibly as a penance for his complicity in the battle of Culdrevny, and settled on Iona, from where he made extensive missionary journeys on the mainland, including a visit to the Pictish King, Brude, in Inverness. He died on Iona in 597.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

O God, who by the preaching of thy blessed servant Saint Columba didst cause the light of the Gospel to shine in these islands: grant, we beseech thee, that, having his life and labours in remembrance, we may show forth our thankfulness unto thee for the same by following the example of his zeal and patience;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

(SPB)

1982 Scottish Liturgy

O God,
you called your servant Columba from among the princes of his land to be a herald and evangelist of your kingdom:
grant that your Church, remembering his faith and courage, may so proclaim the gospel that people everywhere will come to know your Son as their saviour, and serve him as their king;
who is alive and reigns with you,
in the unity of the Holy Spirit,
one God, now and for ever.

BARNABAS, Apostle [4] Red

Born in Cyprus, he was one of the first converts in Jerusalem, who sold land he owned and gave the proceeds to the Church for distribution among the poor. He preached at Antioch, where Saint Paul became one of his fellow-workers, and he went with Paul on his first missionary journey, although their partnership was ended by a disagreement over Barabas's cousin, John Mark.

Barnabas took part in the Council of Jerusalem. He returned to his native land to preach the Gospel, and there he died, according to tradition, as a martyr at Salamis.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

O Lord God Almighty, who didst endue thy holy Apostle Barnabus with singular gifts of the Holy Spirit: leave us not, we beseech thee, destitute of thy manifold gifts, nor yet of grace to use them always to thy honour and glory;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

(SPB)

1982 Scottish Liturgy

Bountiful God,
giver of all gifts, who poured out your Spirit upon your servant Barnabus and give him grace to encourage others:
help us, by his example, to be generous in all our judgements, and unselfish in our service;
through Jesus Christ our Lord,
who is alive and reigns with you,
in the unity of the Holy Spirit,
one God, now and for ever.

John Skinner, Priest (1807) and John Skinner, Bishop (1816) [6] White

John Skinner the elder was born at Birse in Aberdeenshire in 1721. After studying at Aberdeen he became schoolmaster at Monymusk, where he became an Episcopalian, and was ordained in 1742, serving the charge of Longside for 65 years. He was a devoted pastor, a man of liberal sympathies, a noted historian and a considerable poet, often referred to as 'Tullochgorum' after one of his poems. In 1753 he was imprisoned under the Penal Laws for 6 months for conducting worship, and his son John, then 9, shared his imprisonment.

This son, as Incumbent of the Longacre Chapel in Aberdeen, was made Co-adjutor Bishop of Aberdeen in 1782, succeeding to the see in 1786, and was elected Primus in 1788. Three notable events are associated with him: the consecration of Bishop Seabury in his chapel in 1784, the death of Prince Charles Edward shortly after he became Primus, and the repeal of the Penal Laws, largely as the result of his persistent energy, in 1792. His wisdom and statesmanlike qualities guided the Church as it emerged from long years of adversity, and laid the foundations for its future advance, not least in helping to make possible the union of many of the Qualified Chapels with the Scottish

O God, who hast been glorified in the lives of many who have suffered adversity in thy service; we bless thy Name for the faithful witness of my servant John Skinner and the wise leadership of his son; and we pray that thou wouldest grant the knowledge of thy presence and sustaining love to all who suffer for the truth's sake, and guide with heavenly wisdom all whom thou hast set as leaders in thy Church; through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Basil of Caesarea (379), Gregory of Nazianzus (c.390) and Gregory of Nyssa (394), Bishops and Teachers of the Faith [6] White Basil was born of a Christian family at Caesarea in Cappadocia in the year AD 330. Outstanding in learning and virtue he led a retired life, but in 370 he was appointed Bishop of Caesarea. He fought against the Arian heresy, wrote much of value, especially the monastic rules which are still followed by many monks of the Eastern Church; and he was outstanding in helping the poor. He died on 1 January 379.

Gregory was born at Nazianzus in the same year as Basil, 330. He journeyed much in order to acquire knowledge, and followed his friend Basil in undertaking a life of solitude. In 281 he was chosen to be Bishop of Constantinople. Because of the divisions he encountered in the diocese he returned to his native town, where he died around the year 390. A man of outstanding knowledge and eloquence, he was called 'The Theologian'.

Gregory of Nyssa was the younger brother of Basil, whose early adulthood was spent as a teacher of rhetoric. He entered the service of the Church, and in 371 was consecrated Bishop of Nyssa by his brother. After Basil's death he came to the fore as an opponent of Arianism, and was hailed as 'a pillar of orthodoxy' by the Council of Constantinople in 381. His writings surpass those of the other Cappadocian Fathers in depth, and his mystical writings have had great influence. He died around the year 394.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

Grant, O Lord, that as through thy servants Basil and the Fathers of the East thou hast enable thy Church to grow in the knowledge of thy Holy Spirit: so we may learn the hidden mysteries which through the same Spirit thou revealest, and speak them forth to others with his holy wisdom;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

God of truth, through the teaching of your servants Basil and the Fathers of the East you enabled your Church to grow in the knowledge the hidden mysteries of the Spirit which you revealed to us through your Son,

Jesus Christ our Lord.

Bernard Mizeki, Martyr (1896) [6] Red

Bernard Mizeki was born in Mozambique in Portuguese East Africa in 1861, and as a young man came to Cape Town, where he was converted to Christianity. At this time colonial work was expanding into Mashonaland, in what is present-day Zimbabwe, and its Bishop sent Bernard into that province as a catechist, and he settled there, conducting a quiet ministry of pastoral care and missionary teaching. When trouble broke out in the area, the missionaries were advised to flee, but Bernard remained with his people, and was martyred in 1896, the first black martyr of South Africa.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

Lord of all nations, who by the conversion of Bernard Mizeki didst raise up from the people of Africa a missionary faithful even to death: fill thy people with love in the face of hatred and fear, and give us strength to live or die for the name of Jesus; who now liveth and reigneth with thee and the Holy Spirit, ever one God, world without end.

and make us ready to live or die for the name of Jesus;
who is alive and reigns
with you and the Holy Spirit,
one God, now and for ever.

Fillan, Abbot (c.750) [6] White

Fillan was a common Irish name, borne by several saints. The 8th century Fillan was of noble Irish birth, who parents inspired in him a deep love for virtue from his earliest years. He became a monk, and accompanied his uncle, Congan, to Scotland, where his name is associated with Lochalsh, Renfrewshire and , principally, Glendochart and Strathfillan, in the vicinity of Killin and Crianlarich, where an abbey bearing his name was built, probably on the site of the base from which he conducted his missionary journeys, and a well bearing his name has long been associated with cures for mental ailments. His memory was venerated with great affection, and relics, especially his staff and bell, played an important part in later Scottish history. He died around the year AD 750.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

O God, by whose grace the blessed Abbot Fillan, enkindled with the fire of thy love became a burning and a shining light in thy Church: grant that we may be aflame with the spirit of discipline and love, and ever walk before thee as children of light;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

of discipline and love, that we may ever walk before you as children of light;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Alban, Martyr (c.209) [6] Red

Saint Alban, the first identified martyr in Britain, was beheaded at Verulamium (now St Albans in Hertfordshire) in the 3rd century for having given shelter to a fleeing Christian. He may have been a soldier; the mode of his death indicates that he was a Roman citizen. According to tradition, the person he sheltered was a priest, who converted Alban, and when officers came to Alban's house, he dressed himself in the priest's garments and gave himself up in his place. The site of his martyrdom became a shrine, and his cult was well established by the 5th century.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

Grant, we beseech thee,
Almighty God,
that as at the beginning of the conversion of these islands Saint Alban did gloriously confirm the faith by winning a martyr's crown: so in these latter days there may never be lacking those who for Christ's sake love not their lives unto the death; through the same thy Son Jesus Christ our Lord.

1982 Scottish Liturgy

Almighty God,
who at the beginning of the conversion of Britain gloriously confirmed the faith of Alban by giving him a martyr's crown:

following his example in the fellowship of the saints, we may worship and adore you, the true and living God, and be faithful witnesses to the same Jesus Christ our Lord,
who is alive and reigns
with you and the Holy Spirit,

The Birth of John the Baptist [4] White

John the Baptist was the Forerunner of Christ, sent by God to prepare the way for the coming Messiah. He was the son of elderly parents, Zachariah and Elizabeth, and was related to Jesus on his mother's side. He lived an ascetic life in the desert, where he preached an uncompromising message of judgement and ministered a baptism of repentance as a symbol of a new life. Some of his followers became disciples of Jesus. John was beheaded on the orders of Herod, after incurring the enmity of Herodias, Herod's incestuous wife.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

Almighty God,
by whose providence thy servant John Baptist was wonderfully born, and sent to prepare the way of thy Son our Saviour, by preaching of repentance:
Make us so to follow his doctrine and holy life, that we may truly repent according to his preaching, and after his example constantly speak the truth, boldly rebuke vice,
and patiently suffer for the truth's sake;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Moluag of Lismore, Bishop (c.592) [6] White

Moluag was an Irish missionary and pupil of Saint Comgall, who came to Scotland about the same time as Columba, and established a missionary community on the island of Lismore, where the church of Saint Moluag subsequently became the seat of the Bishopric of the Isles. He and his followers seem to have worked mainly in Pictish areas, and he established other centres of mission at Mortlach in Banffshire, and at Rosemarkie on the Black Isle, where, according to tradition, he died in AD 592.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

Almighty God,
who willest to be glorified in thy saints, and didst raise up thy servant Moluag to be a beacon of thy love and truth in this our land:
shine, we pray thee, in our hearts, that we also in our generation may show forth thy praise, who hast called us out of darkness into thy marvellous light;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.
(ECUSA)

1982 Scottish Liturgy

O God, give us, we pray, that love which can never cease, and kindle in us the light of truth that it may burn in us and give light to others; that so, with your servant Moluag, we may be set on fire with that eternal light which puts to flight all darkness and is truly the light of the world, even Jesus Christ our Lord, who is alive and reigns with you and the Holy Spirit, one God in glory undying,

Robert Leighton, Bishop (1684) [6] White

Robert Leighton, born in 1611, was the son of a vehemently puritanical physician. He studied at Edinburgh and on the continent, where he was influenced by the piety and tolerance of the French Jansenists. In 1641 he became Minister of Newbattle, but was highly critical of the extremist Covenanting policy of those days. In 1652 he was sent to negotiate with Cromwell for the release of Scots prisoners taken at the Battle of Worcester, and Cromwell's influence secured for him the principalship of Edinburgh University in the following year, where he exercised a remarkable influence.

At the Restoration he accepted the bishopric of Dunblane, the least remunerative, in the hope that he might use that office to work for the healing of the schisms in the Scottish Church. He devoted himself to the welfare of his diocese with self-effacing zeal. His plans for an "accommodation" with the Presbyterians led to his being appointed Archbishop of Glasgow, but he resigned after 4 years, having made little headway against the bigotry of both parties, and returned to the south of England, where he died in 1684.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

O God, who by the Holy Spirit didst raise up thy faithful servant Robert Leighton to work for peace and reconciliation within thy Church when it was torn apart by bitterness and bigotry, and to commend the virtues of the inner life: we pray that in that same power the divisions of thy Church may be healed,

Alexander Jolly, Bishop (1838) [6] White

Born at Stonehaven in 1756, Alexander Jolly was educated in Aberdeen, ordained at Peterhead and sent to minister at Turriff. After almost twelve years he removed to Fraserburgh, where he spent the rest of his life in austere and studious piety, a man of great learning and deep personal devotion. He was consecrated in 1796 as Co-adjutor to Bishop Macfarlane, who had superintendence of Moray, Ross and Argyll and Caithness, and when Moray was disjoined in 1798 he was unanimously elected as their diocesan by the four presbyters of Moray. His wisdom guided the Church through the difficult years after the repeal of the Penal Laws, and his great learning and saintly life brought considerable prestige to the Church he loved so deeply. He died in 1838.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

Fill thy Church with thy Holy Spirit, O Lord, that it may rejoice today in the gifts of wisdom, learning and holiness which adorned the life of thy blessed bishop Alexander Jolly; that like him we may follow the teachings of thy dear Son in singleness of mind and purity of

Irenaeus of Lyons, Bishop and Teacher of the Faith (202) [6]
*White

Born about the year 130, he was brought up at Smyrna, a disciple of Saint Polycarp. At the time of the persecution under Marcus Aurelius he was a priest at Lyons, in France, and was made bishop of that city in succession to the martyred bishop Pothinus.

He has been called the Church's first great systematic theologian, and in his writings he defended the Catholic faith against the errors of the Gnostics, basing his arguments on Scripture, and on the continuity between the teaching of the Apostles and the teaching of bishops, generation after generation. Tradition asserts that he was martyred around the year 202, but there is no firm evidence for this.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

Almighty God, who of old through thy servant Irenaeus didst hand on the faith and extend thy Church: keep it true to the apostolic tradition and fervent to win new peoples for thee; through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Peter, Apostle [4] Red

Simon, a Galilean fisherman, was brought to Jesus by his brother, Andrew. Jesus recognised in him the future leader of the apostles, and gave him the name Peter, 'the Rock'. In the Gospels he appears impetuous, stumbling and weak-willed, but there are also strong signs of that loyalty, devotion and courage, from which his future leadership developed. His was the great confession, "You are the Christ", and his the terrible triple denial in the high priest's house, from which he was restored by the risen Lord. He was the chief spokesman for the apostles after Pentecost, and he converted and baptized Cornelius, the first gentile Christian.

Tradition associates his ministry with Rome, where he led the Church, and finally died for it in the Neronian persecution, crucified head downwards, according to the tradition, because he was not worthy to be crucified in the same way as his Master.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

O Almighty God, who by thy Son Jesus Christ didst give to thy Apostle Saint Peter many excellent gifts, and commandedst him earnestly to feed thy flock:
Make, we beseech thee, all Bishops and Pastors diligently to preach thy holy word, the same,

that they may receive the crown of everlasting glory;

Peter and Paul, Apostles [4] Red

The joint commemoration of the two most important figures of the apostolic age is based on the tradition that both were martyred in Rome during the persecution unleashed by the emperor Nero. Paul, as a Roman citizen, was beheaded by the sword; Peter suffered the same fate as his Lord, being crucified, but, according to tradition, head downwards, because he was not worthy to die in the same way as his Master.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

Almighty God,
whose blessed apostles
Peter and Paul glorified thee by their martyrdom: grant that thy Church, instructed by their teaching and example, and knit together in unity by thy Spirit, may ever stand firm
upon the one foundation, which is Jesus Christ our Lord; who liveth and reigneth with thee, in the unity of the same Spirit, one God, for ever and ever.

1982 Scottish Liturgy

Almighty God,
whose blessed apostles
Peter and Paul
glorified you in their death as in their life:
grant that your Church, inspired by their teaching and example,
and made one by your Spirit,
may ever stand firm
upon the one foundation,
Jesus Christ our Lord;
who is alive and reigns with you,
in the unity of the Holy Spirit,
one God, for ever and ever.
