

Collects and Biographies for

Saints' Days & Festivals of the Scottish Episcopal Calendar

November

Using this booklet

This booklet contains a short biography, and appropriate collects, for all saints and dated festivals within the Scottish Calendar published in 1996. It does not provide Post-Communion Prayers.

You may use the short biography as a preface to the Collect of the Day to introduce the life of the saint to the congregation, or as a short homily.

This booklet is arranged with one saint (or festival) to a page, giving details of the saint's day, its category (1-6) and the liturgical colour. Collects for use at a 1970 Scottish Liturgy (or 1929) Eucharist are given on the left, those for 1982 Scottish Liturgy on the right.

Notes

- Where feasts in Category 4 fall on a Sunday (other than a Sunday in Categories 1 and 2), they may, if local circumstances require, be kept on that day.
- When days in Category 6 coincide with a day of higher category, they should be omitted that year.

ALL SAINTS [2] White

From its earliest days, the Church has recognized as its foundation stones those heroes of the faith whose lives have excited others to holiness and has assumed a communion between the Church on earth and the Church in heaven.

Celebrating the feast of All Saints began in the fourth century. At first, it was observed on the Sunday after the feast of Pentecost; this was to link the disciples who received the gift of the Holy Spirit at Pentecost, the foundation of the Church, with those who were martyrs, giving their lives as witnesses to the faith. In the eighth century, Pope Gregory III dedicated a chapel to All Saints in St Peter's at Rome on 1 November. Within a century, this day was observed in Britain and Ireland as All Saints' Day.

In the 10th century, Abbot Odela of the Cluny monastery added the next day (November 2nd) as "All Souls' Day" to honour not just the martyrs, but all Christians who had died.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

O Almighty God,
who hast knit together thine elect in one communion and fellowship, in the mystical body
of thy Son Christ our Lord: Grant us grace
so to follow thy blessed Saints in all virtuous and godly living, that we may come to those unspeakable joys which thou hast prepared for them that unfeignedly love thee;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

1982 Scottish Liturgy

Almighty God,
you have knit together your elect
in the mystical body
of your Son Christ our Lord:
grant us grace
so to follow your blessed saints
to those inexpressible joys which you have prepared for those who truly love you;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

All Souls (Commemoration of the Faithful Departed) [5] Violet or Black

‘The believer’s pilgrimage of faith is lived out with the mutual support of all the people of God. In Christ all the faithful, both living and departed, are bound together in a communion of prayer.’ This simple, agreed statement from the Anglican-Roman Catholic International Commission (ARCIC) explains the purpose of the commemoration on this day. Since its foundation, Christians have recognized that the Church, the ecclesia, the assembled people of God, is at its most perfect when it recognizes its unity in God’s redeeming love with all who have said, who say now, and who will say in the fullness of time, ‘Jesus is Lord’.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

O Eternal Lord God,
who holdest all souls in life: We beseech thee to shed forth upon all the faithful departed the bright beams of thy light and heavenly comfort; and grant that they,
and we with them, may at length attain to the joys of thine eternal kingdom;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.
(SPB)

1982 Scottish Liturgy

Eternal God,
our maker and redeemer, grant us, with all the faithful departed, the sure benefits of your Son’s saving passion and glorious resurrection; that in the last day when you gather up all things in Christ we may with them enjoy the fullness of your promises;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Richard Hooker, Priest and Teacher of the Faith (1600) [6] White

Born in Heavitree in Exeter in about 1554, Richard Hooker was deputy Professor of Hebrew at Corpus Christi College, Oxford, and served in several English parishes, including six years as Master of the Temple. One of the greatest English theologians, his writings and teachings established the validity of the Elizabethan religious settlement, in particular against the Puritans, and his Treatise on the Laws of Ecclesiastical Polity is a classical statement of Anglican belief. He died at Bishopsbourne near Canterbury on this day in the year 1600.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

O God of truth and peace, who didst raise up thy servant Richard Hooker in a day of bitter controversy to defend with sound reasoning and great charity the catholic and reformed religion: grant that we may maintain that middle way, not as a compromise
for the sake of peace, but as a comprehension for the sake of truth;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.
(ECUSA – LFF)

1982 Scottish Liturgy

God of peace,
the bond of all love, in your Son Jesus Christ you have made the human race your inseparable dwelling-place: after the example of your servant Richard Hooker give us grace ever to rejoice in the true inheritance of your adopted children, and to show forth your praises now and always;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

William Willibrord, Bishop and Missionary (739) [6] White

A native of Northumbria, educated under Saint Wilfrid at Ripon, he was ordained priest in Ireland in AD 698. Two years later he was one of a band of English missionaries who landed in Friesland. Consecrated archbishop by the Pope in 695, he established his see at Utrecht, and later founded the monastery of Echternach in Luxemburg, which became the hub of considerable English Missionary activity on the continent. He co-operated with Saint Boniface in establishing a pattern of bishoprics in western Europe to continue their missions. He died on this day at Echternach in 739 and was buried at Echternach monastery in Luxembourg, which he founded. He is the patron saint of the Netherlands.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

O Father of all, who through thy servant Willibrord brought those without faith out of darkness
into the light of thy truth:
keep us, we pray thee, strong in our faith and firm in the hope
of the gospel he preached;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

1982 Scottish Liturgy

Father of all, through your servant Willibrord you brought those who had no faith out of darkness
into the light of truth: keep us strong in our faith and firm in the hope
of the gospel he preached;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

George Hay Forbes, Priest (1875) [6] White

Brother of Alexander Penrose Forbes, and crippled throughout his life, he developed an early interest in liturgy, and championed the cause of the Scottish Liturgy against those who wished to foster conformity with England by the use of the Book of Common Prayer. He was ordained in 1848, and in that year began a mission in Burntisland, where he worked as a devoted parish priest for the rest of his life. He set up his own printing press, on which he issued a new Prayer Book in 1850, which met with vigorous opposition, and he edited many patristic and liturgical works with meticulous accuracy. He was a man of deep piety. He died in 1875.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

O eternal Lord God,
who didst call thy Servant
George Hay Forbes to proclaim thy glory in a life of priestly dedication and loving service:
guide and inspire the pastors of thy flock that they may build up thy Church in understanding of thy truth, in prayerful devotion to thee, and in loving care to all thy children;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Leo the Great, Bishop and Teacher of the Faith (461) [6] White

Born in Tuscany, Leo was elected Pope in AD 440 at a time of great upheaval for the Church and the Empire, in 451 the Council of Chalcedon accepted his doctrinal letter (the 'Tome' of Leo) as the definitive statement of orthodox teaching on the divine and human natures of Christ, and in the following year he went in person to confront the invading Huns under Attila, and persuaded them to withdraw beyond the Danube.

When the Vandals occupied Rome in 455, he was able to prevent a general massacre of the inhabitants. He represented the ideal Roman character: energetic, magnanimous, consistent and clear-thinking, and unswerving in his duty, and he greatly advanced the influence and status of the Roman see. Celebrated as a doctor of the Church, he died on this day in 461.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

Almighty God,
who madest Saint Leo to be both a refuge of the State and also the bulwark of the Catholic Faith:
grant that the courage wherewith thou didst enable him to be steadfast in the evil day may be ours also in upholding the Christian standards which thou hast given us;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

(F)

1982 Scottish Liturgy

God our Father:
fill your Church with the spirit of truth, so that, with your servant Leo, she may prevail against the powers of evil, and so be guided by humility and governed by love;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Martin of Tours, Bishop (c.397) [6] White

Born of pagan parents in what is now Hungary, he was brought up in Italy and became a soldier. As a young officer at Amiens he gave half his cloak to a naked beggar, in whom he was led to recognize Christ, and soon afterwards was baptized and sought discharge from the army. For some years he lived as a recluse, and then founded a semi-eremitical monastery at Ligugé, the first monastery in Gaul.

He was chosen as Bishop of Tours in 372, and lived in a solitary place near by. A very active missionary, travelling to the remotest parts of his diocese and instituting a rudimentary parochial system, he was renowned for his spiritual powers and founded many monasteries. He was one of the teachers of Saint Ninian, and died on this day in 397.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

O Almighty God,
who didst endue thy soldier, Martin, with the spirit of courtesy and sacrifice, and didst make him a Bishop and apostle of the faith: grant us grace to grow in his likeness and, serving thy children, to glorify thee,
and at the last to attain unto thy eternal kingdom:
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

(DSB)

1982 Scottish Liturgy

God all powerful, you called Martin from the armies of the world to be a faithful soldier of Christ: give us grace to follow him in his love and compassion for the needy, and enable your Church to claim for all people their inheritance as your children;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Machar, Bishop (c.600) [6] White

Machar was born in Ireland of princely parentage, and was baptized by Colman. He accompanied Columba to Iona, from where he moved to Mull—it is said because his great sanctity aroused the jealousy of some of the other monks—and later established a mission in the north-east of Scotland, on the site later marked by the cathedral in Old Aberdeen dedicated to him, where he worked alongside Saint Devenick and Saint Ternan. St Machar's Well beside it traditionally provided water for local baptisms.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

Merciful Lord God, who through the preaching of thy servant Machar didst give to our fathers the light of faith; grant that we who glory in the name of thine only begotten Son may show forth in our lives the light of his presence and draw others to his service; who now liveth and reigneth with thee and the Holy Spirit, ever one God, world without end.

Anniversary of the Consecration of Samuel Seabury, Bishop (1784)

During the colonial era, there had been no Anglican bishops in the New World; and persons seeking to be ordained as clergy had to travel to England for the purpose. After the achievement of American independence, it was important for the Church in the United States to have its own bishops, and an assembly of Connecticut clergy chose Samuel Seabury to go to England and there seek to be consecrated as a bishop.

However, the English bishops were forbidden by law to consecrate anyone who would not take an oath of allegiance to the British Crown. He accordingly turned to the Episcopal Church of Scotland, which had no connection with the government (having originated around 1690 with the non-Jurors: those Anglicans who, having sworn allegiance to James Stuart, would not during his lifetime swear allegiance to William of Orange, and who were accordingly all but outlawed under the new dynasty), and was accordingly free to consecrate him without political complications.

In Aberdeen, on 14 November 1784, Samuel Seabury was consecrated to the Episcopate by the Bishop and the Bishop Coadjutor of Aberdeen and the Bishop of Ross and Caithness. He thus became part of the unbroken chain of bishops that links the Church today with the Church of the Apostles.

(from the Society of Archbishop Justus website)

1970 Scottish Liturgy

We give thee thanks, O Lord our God, for thy goodness in bestowing upon this Church the gift of the episcopate, which we celebrate in this remembrance of the consecration of Samuel Seabury; and we pray that, joined together in unity with our bishops, and nourished by thy holy Sacraments, we may proclaim the Gospel of redemption with apostolic zeal; through Jesus Christ our Lord, who liveth and reigneth with thee and the Holy Spirit, one God, now and for ever.

Margaret of Scotland (1093) [4] White

Grand-daughter of the English king, Edmund Ironside, Margaret was born in exile in Hungary around 1045. Brought to England in 1057, she found refuge after the Norman Conquest in Scotland, and in 1070 married King Malcolm Canmore. Their marriage was one of great devotion.

Margaret was a deeply devout woman, who found the twilight Celtic Church corrupt and idiosyncratic. Her reforms, encouraged by Prior Turgot of Durham and Archbishop Lanfranc of Canterbury, brought the Scottish Church into line with Western Catholic norms. At Dunfermline she established Scotland's first Benedictine monastery, close to the palace. She did much to civilize Scotland, and her sons continued in her religious and social policies. Margaret's concern for the poor and orphaned was notable. She died in Edinburgh, on this day, four days after her husband had been treacherously killed in battle at Alnick in 1093.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

O God,
Queen Margaret to an earthly throne that she might advance thy heavenly kingdom, and didst endue her with zeal for thy Church and charity towards thy people: Mercifully grant that we who commemorate her example may be fruitful in good works, and attain to the glorious fellowship

Hilda of Whitby (680) [6] White also see overleaf for Hugh of Lincoln

Grand-niece of King Edwin of Northumbria, baptized by Saint Paulinus in AD 527 at the age of 13, Hilda became a nun in her 30s, and shortly afterwards Saint Aidan made her abbess of a convent at Hartlepool. After a few years she established a new foundation at Whitby, which she ruled for the rest of her life – a double community, among whose early members were Saint John of Beverley and the poet Caedmon. At the Synod held in her monastery to resolve the conflict between the Celtic and Roman parties in the Church Hilda supported the Celtic tradition.

The influence of her charity extended far beyond the confines of her monastery, and she was a respected adviser of rulers. “All who knew her called her Mother, such were her wonderful godliness and grace” is Bede’s verdict on her life, which ended in the year 680.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

O God of peace, by whose grace the abbess Hilda was endowed with gifts of justice, prudence, and strength to rule as a wise mother over the nuns and monks of her household, and to become a trusted and reconciling friend to leaders of the Church: give us grace to recognize and accept the varied gifts thou dost bestow on men and women, that our common life may be enriched and thy gracious will be done;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

(ECUSA – LFF)

1982 Scottish Liturgy

God of compassion, your Son Jesus Christ became poor that we,
through his poverty,
might be truly rich:
free us from all undue love of this world, that, following the example of your servant Hilda, we may serve you with singleness of heart, and attain to the riches of the world to come;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Hugh of Lincoln, Bishop (1200) [6] White also see previous page for Hilda of Whitby

Hugh of Avalon was summoned to England by Henry II to take charge of the new Carthusian monastery at Witham in Somerset in 1178. He would not accept the appointment until Henry had given compensation 'to the last penny' to all who had been evicted from homes or land to create the monastery.

In 1186 he was appointed Bishop of Lincoln, the largest diocese in England, and he tackled its problems and neglect with characteristic earnestness. He began the rebuilding of the cathedral, and was incensed by injustice in any form: he supported the common people against the savage laws of the royal hunting-forests, he stood up alone against rioting anti-Jewish mobs, and he refused to pay taxes to subsidise the King's French wars.

He is remembered for his care for the sick, and his love for children. He died in 1200 in London, one of the most attractive characters of mediaeval England.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

O merciful Father, who didst endow thy servant Hugh of Lincoln with a wise and cheerful boldness, and didst teach him to commend the discipline of holy life to kings and princes: give us grace like him not only to be bold, but to have just cause for boldness, even the fear and love of thyself alone;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Fergus, Bishop (c.750) [6] White

There are a number of dedications recording the missionary work of Fergus in the north-east of Scotland, and he is generally identified with a Pictish bishop who attended a Council at Rome in the year AD 721.

He was the patron saint of the burgh at Wick, and the Aberdeenshire village of St Fergus is probably the site of the small settlement from which his mission radiated.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

God our heavenly Father, who didst extend the earthly boundaries of thy Church by the preaching of thy servant Fergus:
in the power of thy Holy Sprit grant to thy people in our own day growth in holiness and faith;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Columban, Bishop (615) [6] White

Born at Leinster around the year AD 540, Columban became a monk in his youth, in 585 his abbot at Bangor, Saint Comgall gave him permission to go to Europe, taking several companions including Saint Gall. Three monasteries were established in the Vosges, but his inflexible rule and defiant adherence to the Celtic traditions aroused fierce opposition, and in 610 the Irish monks were expelled from Burgundy. Travelling through Switzerland, Columban crossed the Alps into Lombardy, where he founded the great abbey of Bobbio in 614. He died there, on this day, in the following year.

His monastic tradition spread widely throughout Europe through the activity of his disciples, until it was superseded by the less stringent Benedictine tradition.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

O God our heavenly Father, who didst give thy blessed servant Columban
as a light to thy Church, that he might make known the way of salvation:
grant that we,
inspired by his example, may so follow Christ our Master that we may come at length to the joys of thy heavenly kingdom; through the same
Jesus Christ our Lord.

(RB – adapted)

1982 Scottish Liturgy

Lord God,
your servant Columban has given us an example of zeal for the monastic life and for the proclamation of the gospel:
strengthen us by his example to seek you above all things, and to strive to build up the household of faith;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Cecilia, Martyr (c.230) [6] Red

Cecilia was one of the most venerated martyrs of the early Roman Church, although little is known for certain about her. According to tradition she was a Christian of patrician rank who was betrothed to a pagan, and at her wedding told him that her virginity was consecrated to God. Her conviction won her husband over, and he was baptized, as was his brother later. All three were martyred in about the year 230 after refusing the test of offering sacrifice to the Roman gods.

Her association with music derives from the report, in the 6th century account of her sufferings, of her singing praises to God in her heart while the instruments were making music at her wedding.

O God, who as on this day didst cause thy blessed Virgin Saint Cecilia to attain unto the heavenly pain of martyrdom;
grant us, we beseech thee, so to follow her example that we may be accounted worthy to be admitted into thy presence;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

(F)

1982 Scottish Liturgy

Lord, you have taught us that you live for ever in the hearts of the chaste, and you inspired Cecilia to lay down her life for love of you: help us to live by your grace and remain a temple of your Spirit. that we may come to see you face to face;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Clement of Rome, Bishop and Martyr (c.100) [6] Red

Clement was the 3rd successor to Peter as leader of the Roman Church, and Saint Irenaeus says he had been with the apostles, which has led some to identify him with the Clement mentioned in Paul's Epistle to the Philippians.

He is remembered for a letter he wrote to the Church in Corinth at a time of disturbance there, in which a deep pastoral concern is linked with firm admonition. It is also a valuable historical source for the life of the Church at the end of the first century. He is venerated as a martyr, but there is no clear information about the manner of his death.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

O Lord who in every age dost write names in thy Book of Life, and dost lead the meek of the earth to be followers of the Lamb of God: raise up to us teachers like thy servant Clement, the disciples of thy first Apostles, who by their writings may instruct the Church without thought of self, and open to us healing fountains of repentance, peace and love;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

(F)

1982 Scottish Liturgy

Almighty and ever-living God, whose glory is proclaimed in the lives of the saints; strengthen us, as we celebrate the memory of your bishop Clement, who bore effective witness to the love he proclaimed and the gospel he preached, to be faithful to your Son Jesus Christ and to make known his love in all we do and say; who now lives and reigns with you and the Holy Spirit, one God, for ever and ever.

Lucy Menzies (1954) [6] White

A native of Saint Andrews, Lucy Menzies grew up at All Saints' Church and returned there in the later years of her life. Her father was a minister of the Church of Scotland, and ecumenism was a strong interest throughout her life. As a scholar, she is remembered for her work on the lives of Scottish saints, particularly Saint Columba, and for her translation of many works of spirituality; as a woman of prayer, she inspired others by the sense of God's presence which she radiated.

She became Warden of the retreat house at Pleshey and was a disciple of Evelyn Underhill, whose work which revived interest in mysticism for her generation in the Church of England. She died in 1954.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

O God our heavenly Father, who by thy Holy Spirit didst draw thy servant Lucy Menzies into the deeper knowledge of thy love:
enlighten our darkness, we beseech thee,
by that same Spirit, and grant us to know in our own lives the joy of thy presence and the power of thy grace;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

(MEG from R)

1982 Scottish Liturgy

Lord God,
your love and goodness is expressed in the lives and devotion of ordinary men and women: we thank you for the shining example of your servant Lucy Menzies and pray that her charity and vision may inspire us to treasure your teaching and express it in our own lives;
through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Andrew, Apostle, Patron of Scotland [4] Red

Born at Bethsaida, he was formerly a disciple of John the Baptist, and then followed Christ, to whom he brought his brother Peter, and so is remembered as the first missionary for Christ, but he was not one of the special 'inner circle' of Peter, James and John, who were selected by the Lord to accompany him on certain occasions in His ministry.

With Philip Andrew introduced Gentiles to Christ, and he was the disciple who pointed out the boy with the loaves and fishes. According to tradition he preached the Gospel in many places after Pentecost, notably Scythia, and he suffered death by crucifixion on an x-shaped cross in Patras in northern Achaia.

He became the patron saint of Scotland because of a legend that his relics had been brought here in the eighth century, landing at the town of Kilrymont, now renamed St Andrews. He is also the patron saint of Russia.

1970 Scottish Liturgy

Almighty God,
who didst give such grace unto thy holy Apostle Saint Andrew, that he readily obeyed the calling of thy Son Jesus Christ, and followed him without delay: Grant unto us all, that we,
being called by thy holy word, may forthwith give up ourselves obediently to fulfil thy holy commandments;
through the same
Jesus Christ our Lord.

(SPB)

1982 Scottish Liturgy

Almighty God,
who gave such grace to your apostle Andrew to follow without delay, and to tell the good news of your kingdom;
